

ORLAND PARK LEGION POST OFFICERS INSTALLED BY DISTRICT COMMANDER

Tuesday night was a very important night for the Orland Park Post of the American Legion No. 526, for on this night they held their first official meeting in their beautifully newly decorated headquarters in the former R. M. Cooper store building.

The Orland Park Community Band played a number of selections which were greatly enjoyed.

The meeting was called to order by Commander W. R. Schussler.

The installation service was performed by Fourth District Commander O'Connell of Homewood. The officers installed are as follows: W. R. Schussler, Commander; Van Burken Knox, Vice-Commander; Herman Kruspe, 2nd Vice-Commander; Rev. Paul T. Sanders, Chaplain; Lawrence Cahill, Adjutant; George Cox, Finance Officer; Herman Nicolai, Sergeant-at-arms.

State District Commander, Jack Poorman of Homewood, delivered a very interesting and stirring address stressing the need of the ex-service men. He also stressed the matter of adjusted compensation claims and scored the Veterans Bureau for their laxity and red tape in taking care of the veterans' claims. He pointed out that in many instances the government was to blame for the depression felt all over the country. He said that the program of public works construction should have been inaugurated a year ago and then the matter of employment would have been settled and the present acute unemployment situation would not exist. He also urged a bigger membership for all of the Posts in the state, for the stronger they are in membership, the more prestige and attention they will command, not only in Springfield, but in Washington also.

While Commander Poorman was in the midst of his speech, the roll of drums was faintly heard in the distance. Soon the roll grew louder and louder and the sound of fifes was heard and was very inspiring.

Commander Poorman said he could remember where he left off in his speech and then the bugle and drum corps of the Lemont Legion Post marched in and played a very stirring number to the accompaniment of the drums. The Lemont drum corp members made a fine appearance in their splendid uniforms and made a decided hit. At the close of the meeting the Lemont corps played another rousing selection.

In addition to the Lemont Post, the Legion Posts of Midlothian and Tinley Park were also represented. Those representing Tinley were: Commander George Rowden, Past Commander Frank Hoar and James Berry. Midlothian was represented by Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Wirtz, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Muelhausen.

At the close of the session a sumptuous luncheon was served consisting of sandwiches, cake, doughnuts, pickles and coffee. Judge S. S. Knox did the kitchen honors and certainly has the knack of making good coffee.

Editors Williams of the Lemont Optimist-News and Wm. Semmler of Mokena were also present.

The Orland Park Legion Post meets every second and fourth Tuesday evening. Plans are under way for a big get-together meeting and banquet in the near future to which all those who donated in any way toward the local Post, will be the guests of honor of the Post. Orland Park is certainly to be congratulated on having such a fine organization in its midst and it is hoped it will prove a big asset to the community.

Sports

Mokena Wins Triple Victory

Last Friday night the Mokena grade school girls in their first game defeated the New Lenox grade school girls 10 to 9 in a thrilling contest.

The Mokena grade school boys defeated the New Lenox grade school boys in an easy victory of 29 to 25.

The Matteson high school went down to defeat before Mokena high school by a score of 33 to 14.

The grade school boys meet the undefeated Chaney grade school Friday night. The high school will meet the Penrose grade fast light-weight team.

The town basketball team continues to play some of the best teams of the surrounding towns, but feel that they should be given better support by the home town folks than they are. They invite the public to attend these games played at the Mokena school gym.

Pastor and Attorney Nearly Killed When Auto Is Ditched

While Rev. Mr. Blasberg of Green Garden and Attorney A. H. Krusemark of Frankfort were on their way to Frankfort from a trip to Chicago Tuesday afternoon, they met with a serious auto accident on the Lincoln Highway east of Frankfort.

Rev. Mr. Blasberg was driving when the car suddenly skidded on an icy piece in the pavement and was forced in front of a big truck. The impact hurled the car from the pavement and upset it in the ditch, pinning both men under the car. Mr. Krusemark's shouts for help were head by other motorists who stopped and lifted the car off the two men, both of whom were lucky to escape injuries, but were quite badly shaken up and somewhat bruised.

Public Services Shows Business Increase

That the 1930 rate of increase in gross business of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois is double that for electric light and power companies throughout the United States is shown by a recent report of the Public Service Company's statistical department, which compares with local Company's figures for the past year with a statement from the headquarters of the National Electric Light Association.

"The unusual showing of the Public Service Company," said L. C. Stephens, local district manager, "was made despite depression in business conditions generally and despite a major reduction made during the year in rates for electrical service. This reduction saved customers of the Company $928,000 during 1930. Had it not been for this reduction, the Public Service Company's rate of gross earnings would have been three times the average for the electric light and power business of the country."

According to figures recently released by the National Electric Light Association, consumption of electricity by the average residential customer increased during the year from an annual rate of 500 kilowatt-hours to 550 kilowatt-hours. The average consumption for the Public Service Company's household customers rose from 534 kilowatt-hours to 585 kilowatt-hours.

The Company has also made considerable progress in the electrification of farms, the report shows. During 1930, the number of its farm customers increased 42 per cent, as compared with an average increase of only 18 per cent for the entire country. Although only 12 per cent of the farms of Illinois are located in the Company's territory, at the close of 1929 the Company had on its lines 28.5 per cent of all the farms of the state which receive electrical service from central station companies.

Sen. Barr Interested In Flasher For the Cappel Crossing

The matter of securing a flasher for the protection of the Cappel Crossing on the Rock Island railroad east of Mokena which has been lying dormant for over a year is being revived again by Senator R. J. Barr, who has taken the matter up with the Rock Island railroad. He has been advised by L. G. Fritch, Vice-President of the Rock Island that the company will take up the matter at once.

This is a dangerous crossing and several people have been killed here by trains.

News-Bulletin Scores Scoop

The News-Bulletin scored a real scoop last week when an exclusive story was printed about the special session of the Will County Board to consider the matter of hiring extra legal aid for States Attorney H. Rehn to carry out the highway right of way condemnation suits which are to be instituted for right of way on route 66 at Plainfield and on the Wolf Road south of Mokena. The News-Bulletin was the only paper in the county to report the proceedings of this meeting.

Mokena Garden Club News

The Mokena Garden club will meet at the home of Mrs. Thomas Moore, Feb. 3rd at 2 P. M.

The Lilacs Unit of the Junior Garden club met at the home of their leader, Mrs. F. Tooley, Monday afternoon after school. A song was received which was written and set to music specially for the Lilac Unit. Mr. G. M. Kraus was awarded the Bird House for which tickets had been sold. Esther Weedon read a poem, "January". Gertrude Sippel and Bernice Muehler sang two songs.

Prepare Papers In Condemnation Right-of-way Suits

The matter of securing right of way for state and county bond issue roads in Will county is being given much attention right now by the Will County Bond Issue right of way committee.

According to Henry Seehausen, a member of this committee, papers are being prepared for condemnation suits for right of way on state bond issue route 66 at Plainfield and will be turned over to the office of the Will County states attorney for action.

Soon as these papers have been disposed of, Mr. Seehausen stated similar action will be taken on the Wolf Road right of way matter thru the farm of C. M. Cleveland south of Mokena. Speedy action is promised so that bids can be received and contracts let in order to start work on these projects in the spring soon as the weather permits.

Glen Fletcher, Will county engineer, advises that the gaps at the bridges north and south of Mokena on the Wolf Road will be paved this spring just as soon as weather conditions will permit.

Former states attorney Robert Martin has been chosen by States Attorney H. Rehn to assist him in handling the right of way condemnation cases of the county.

Good road boosters in the eastern section of Will county are keenly interested in the actions of the right of way committee and hope to see them takespeedy action in clearing up right of way matters so road construction work in Will county can proceed uninterrupted this summer.

About sixteen miles of highway under the county bond issue will be up for bids within the next few weeks.

Notes to the Editor

To the Editor:

We are advised that Mr. Edward E. Roewade, Secretary-Assst. Treasurer of the A. J. Reach, Wright and Ditson, Inc., and owner of the very beautiful estate at Palos Park known as Bettysome Lodge is a candidate for the office of mayor of Palos Park in the coming election. We are sure that Mr. Roewade is well fitted for the office and Palos Park should be grateful that a man of his high standing and character will volunteer for this public work. Best wishes tot Mr. Roewade and congratulations to Palos Park.

H. C. Melcher.

To the Editor:

In a recent issue of the News Bulletin, you very kindly printed an article regarding "Who's Who" in the South-West towns Chamber of Commerce, but unfortunately you did not understand the corrections to the last paragraph and I am wondering if you feel that it might be necessary to correct this. The paragraph should have read as follows:

"My suggestion for a solution is that each of these factions lay down their hatchets, store their bayonets and each one select one representative, these representatives to select a third and the organizations to abide by a decision as to Who's Who as made by this committee."

Orland Park Observer.

Mild Weather Brings Out Wild Ducks

The very mild weather of the past few weeks is making the farmers feel like preparing for spring field work. Bees have been noticed flying about and Henry Menke of Tinley Park reports seeing a flock of wild ducks heading northward.

Entertainment Draws Capacity House

The entertainment given by the Ladies Aid of the St. John Evangelical church at the Mokena school auditorium Thursday night, drew a capacity house and the playlets presented were much enjoyed. In all the affair was a decided success.

Palos Candidates File Petitions

The following candidates have filed their petitions for the offices of mayor and of commissioners for Palos Park:

For mayor: J. W. Mahaffay, present incumbent; E. W. Roewade.

For commissioners: Charles Herdel, George E. Hermanson, F. C. Mahaffay, Clyde Schultz, Roy Stockdale and E. J. Umloir.

For police magistrate: Lester Mahaffay and Geo. E. Weeks.

12 1-2 ACRES SOLD FOR $600 AN ACRE AT TINLEY TO BROADCASTING STATION

According to the reports current in Tinley Park on Wednesday afternoon, Alex Uzemack who owns the old Hopkins farm, an old time home stead in Bremen township, sold 12 1-2 acres that day to a radio broadcasting station corporation for $600 per acre. The land is located in the northeast portion of the farm and Mr. Uzemack gave a 16 foot road way to the property under the terms of the deal.

Just who the company is and what kind of a station is to be erected is being shrouded in mystery. Engineers of the corporation have been on the ground this week. It is understood that construction work on the new station will be commenced at an early date.

Tinley Lions All Set For Big Minstrel

The members of the Tinley Park Lions Club are devoting two nights a week to practice and at the present rate of progress expect to be in fine form for the opening night of February 12th.

This will be an old time minstrel show and produced by 100 per cent of local talent.

The whole company will consist of about twenty-four members, as follows: Mr. Wm. Ward, Interlocutor or middle man. End men as follows: Tamborines, Clyde Rice, Bob Rocker, Fred Goebel and Art Schoeneck. Bones: Shelby Hirsch, A. O. Foskett, Ernie Anderson and Hildig Anderson. Circle: Messers. Snodgrass, Berg, F. Mancke and John Andres. Chorus, in addition: Messers: Carmichael, Mager, J. Funk, Gobe, Norman Schoeneck, Rauhoff, Detwiler, Wallin and R. Bremman.

The orchestra will be led by Tony Koski with Ruth Funk at the piano. Proceeds will be devoted to the Lions Club Welfare Fund after the necessary expenses are deducted.

This is where your money will do double duty. Entertainment for yourself and an aid to your fellowman through the welfare fund.

The prices of admission too, are going to be easy on your pocket book. Further details will be announced next week. Reserve the dates: February 12 and 13 for the event of the season.

Mrs. Bock of Mokena Granted Divorce

A divorce was granted Monday in circuit court to Mrs. Lizzie Bock, of Mokena, from Charles Bock. Mrs. Bock brought a charge of drunkenness. In a bill filed Monday, Mrs. Emma L. Kreig, of Frankfort, seeks a divorce from Louis Krieg, on the grounds of desertion.

Tinley R. N. A. Installation Very Elaborate Affair

The installation of officers of the Tinley Park R. N. A., held at the Community Hall Tuesday night, was a gala affair. The outgoing and incoming officers were presented with beautiful floral offerings.

In addition to the officers of the local camp, the officers of the R. N. A. Juveniles were also installed.

Members of the Camps at Harvey, Frankfort and Blue Island attended the installation ceremonies.

Tinley School Building Committee Preparing Plans

The Tinley Park school building committee who have charge of building a $40,000 addition to the Tinley Park public school, have been looking over various high schools and gyms in nearby cities and towns. On Tuesday they visited the high schools at Geneva, Crete and also visited some schools on the outskirts of Joliet. Four architects, among them Architect Coyle of Joliet, have asked to submit plans. Those who were on the inspection tour Tuesday were: J. C. Funk, Paul Rauhoff, Bert Fulton, Henry Vogt, Edward Henke, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Goebel and Mrs. Jennie Klepper.

Schools at Aurora and Plainfield were also looked over. The committee is seeking to erect the best possible addition to the local school for the amount of money they can spend. They are planning to make the school adequate for the needs of the community for the next 25 years.

Mokena P. T. A. Sponsors Play

A three act comedy of home life will be given by the Mokena P.T.A. play-ground equipment committee. Thursday evening February 12, at 8 o'clock, in the school auditorium. This is their one big drive for funds, adequate for the purchase of suitable play ground equipment.

It is to the interest of everyone in the community, and we are asking your support. Mokena is proud of their school building. Let us be as equally proud of our school grounds. For further announcements, see next week's News-Bulletin.

Coming Events At Tinley Park

The following coming events are claiming much interest in Tinley Park at present:

Jan. 31—Concertina Club dance.

Feb. 7—Tinley Post American Legion masquerade.

Feb. 12 and 13—Big Minstrel Show of Tinley Park Lions Club.

Feb. 14—Triangle Club Valentine dance.

NEW LIGHT ON LINCOLN

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

CONSIDERING the fact that his death occurred only 65 years ago and that almost immediately a large number of people began preserving mementoes of him, and considering the intensive search for original material—letters, documents and the like—that has been carried on for the last 30 years, at least, it would seem that by now every available bit of information relating to Abraham Lincoln would have been discovered. But the amazing fact is that for all this interest in the Great Emancipator and all this activity to bring to light every scrap of paper made valuable by the touch of his pen, new letters, new documents and other new material about him are constantly being found and their discovery heralded in the newspapers. There is scarcely a sale held in the leading auction rooms frequented by collectors that does not contain at least one "Lincoln item" and often more. Many of these, of course, are of such historical importance that they were known and perhaps made use of by some recent Lincoln historian or biographer so they cannot be classified as "discoveries." But even excluding these, the number of Lincoln letters and documents, unknown to the scholars, which make their appearance in public after years of obscurity among the family relics and heirlooms of private individuals indicates that we are far from reaching the end of the hitherto unknown Lincolniana which exists today.

An interesting reflection of this fact is found in the book, "New Letters and Papers of Lincoln," compiled under the auspices of the Abraham Lincoln association of Springfield, Ill., by Paul M. Angle, secretary of that organization, and published recently by the Houghton Mifflin company. This book, a thick volume of nearly 400 pages, contains many of the writings of Lincoln which have never before been published, as well as many which have appeared in one book or another relating to Lincoln.

In the preface to this book the compiler refers to previous collections of Lincoln papers and lists as the most important the "Complete Works of Abraham Lincoln," which was "the first collection of Lincoln letters, speeches and papers which made any claim to inclusiveness," brought out by Nicolay and Hay in two volumes in 1894; the "Gettysburg Edition of the Complete Works of Abraham Lincoln," a reissue of Nicolay and Hay's collection in 12 volumes, brought out by the Tandy-Thomas company in 1905; Gilbert A. Tracy's "Uncollected Letters of Abraham Lincoln," published in 1917, and "Lincoln Letters at Brown," published by Brown university in 1927.

"The present volume is intended as a supplement to these three publications," says Mr. Angle. "Since earlier collections of Lincoln's writings were made, the interest in his life has become ever greater. Where earlier compilers of Lincoln's writings were inclined to include only those items to which they ascribed some importance, the present collection includes every scrap, no matter how insignificant it may appear. . . . In view of the intensive study which Lincoln's life has received, the collection of a body of material of the importance and diversity of that presented here has been a source of surprise even to the compiler. Especially gratifying is its wide range of subject-matter, embracing legal opinions and family letters, notes jotted down during the trial of lawsuits, speeches, telegrams and even verse. Many of these documents throw fresh light on the personality of the writer. Particularly illuminating are the endorsements which form so large a part of Lincoln's correspondence during the Presidency."

Lincoln as the writer of prose of matchless strength and beauty—such as the Gettysburg Address—is a familiar figure to most Americans. But Lincoln in the role of poet is totally unfamiliar. Yet in the Pierpont Morgan library in New York city is the original manuscript of a poem which Lincoln wrote. It came about in this way: During the campaign of 1844, while Lincoln was a candidate for the office of Presidential elector, he made several speeches in Illinois and southwestern Indiana. In the latter state he visited the neighborhood of his boyhood home and enjoyed the experience so much that, as he said, it "aroused feelings in me which were certainly poetry; though whether my expression of these feelings is poetry is quite another question." He sent two "cantos" of the poem his visit inspired to Andrew Johnston, an attorney of Quincy, Ill., with a promise that if he should ever send another the subject would be a bear hunt. The result of that promise was a poem of 22 verses under the title of "The Bear Hunt."

These poems are interesting if not particularly inspired or inspiring. Perhaps the best comment upon them was that made by his sympathetic but honest and truth-seeking biographer of recent years, the late Senator Albert J. Beveridge, who printed one of the verses of the first "canto"

Edward Lusk, Esq., Springfield, Oct. 30, 1858
Dear Sir
I understand the story of the being told, and in fact, I have been a know nothing. I repeat, what I state in a public speech at Meredosia, that I am not! Nor ever have been, nor nearly into the party called the know nothing party, or party calling themselves the American party. Certainly no man with, and I believe, no man goes so far for truth can be found to pay as his own knowledge that I am a counter to the party.
S. P. Thompson Esq.,
Saturday Oct. 30, 1858.
I saw Mr. Lincoln's wife and son the above letter. It is genuine—as I have said to Esq. Lusk before. I now repeat that I know that Mr. Lincoln never was a member of the American or know nothing party.
O. M. Hatch

1. Last picture of Lincoln. Taken by Alexander Gardner in Washington, April 10, 1865, four days before the assassination.

2. Lincoln letter in the possession of Mrs. Charles E. Davis of Decatur, Ill. It was written to her father, Edward Lusk of Meredosia, Ill., a short time before election day of the year Lincoln was running for United States senator against Stephen A. Douglas. In it Lincoln denied any affiliation with the "Know Nothing" party, or "Order of United Americans," an organization analogous to the Ku Klux Klan of recent years. Lusk was a member of the legislature and an intimate friend of Lincoln's and to quiet rumors that had been circulated by Lincoln's enemies, Lusk asked him to write an authoritative denial.

3. Upon this walnut desk in February, 1861, President-elect Lincoln wrote his first inaugural address. It is the property of the heirs of C. M. Smith of Springfield, Ill., and is now on exhibition in the Illinois State Historical Library in the Centennial Memorial building in Springfield.

which Lincoln sent Johnston and then said: "Fortunately, the remaining cantos of this production appear to have been lost." "The Bear Hunt" describes in minute detail the pursuit, by men and dogs, of a bear which had killed a hog. It tells of a "short-legged fice" which comes "yelping far behind" during the chase, but after the bear has been killed by the rifles of the hunters

Aforesaid fice, of blustering mood,
Behind, and quite forgot.
Just now emerging from the wood,
Arrives upon the spot.

With grinning teeth, and up-turned hair—
Brinful of spunk and wrath,
He growls, and seizes on dead bear,
And shakes for life and death.
And swells as if his skin would tear,
And growls, and shakes again;
And swears, as plain as dog can swear,
That he has won the skin.

Conceited whelp! we laugh at thee—
Now mind, that not a few
Of pompous, two-legged dogs there be,
Conceited quite as you.

Concerning "The Bear Hunt" Beveridge makes this gently ironic comment: "Lincoln was thirty-seven years old when he wrote these 'poems.' Nearly twenty years were to elapse before he produced the Second Inaugural."

But if Lincoln, at this period in his life, was writing doggerel poetry which little indicated the quality of the prose which he was to write later, he was already exhibiting some of those qualities which were to endear him to all mankind. One of them was his modesty, reflected in this letter (the original of which is preserved in the Historical Society of Pennsylvania at Philadelphia) written, while he was a congressman, to an autograph seeker:

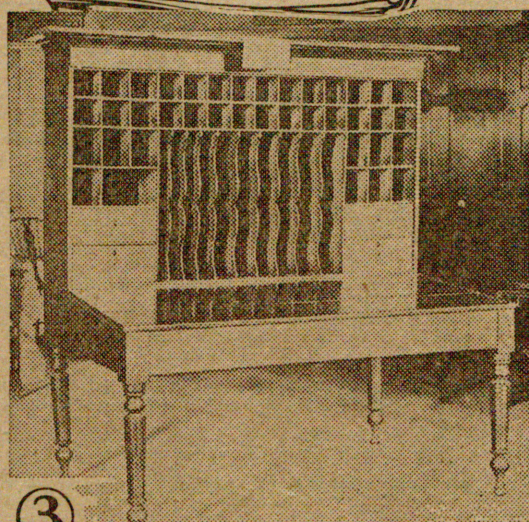

"Your note, requesting my 'signature with a sentiment' was received, and should have been answered long since, but that it was mislaid. I am not a very sentimental man; and the best sentiment I can think of is, that if you collect the signatures of all persons who are no less distinguished than I, you will have a very undistinguished mass of names."

His kindness to those in distress is proverbial and an echo of it is found in this letter, written in 1858. Absorbed as he was in politics—for this was the year of the Lincoln-Douglas debates—he could still find time to investigate the case of a convict who had appealed to him for aid. He wrote to Daniel Stevens Dickinson, a Democratic senator from New York as follows:

"In March 1857 I saw upon the Railroad train, being taken from Chicago to Alton, to the Penitentiary there, a man of gentlemanly appearance by the name of Hyde. He accosted me and conversed some as to the chance of obtaining a pardon. A year after he addressed me the inclosed letter from the prison. You see he mentions your name. Do you really know him? If our Governor could learn that he has been respectable, and is of respectable connections, perhaps he would pardon him. Please answer."

"Pardon the liberty I take in addressing you. Several years ago I knew you slightly at Washington."

Two years later he was nominated for President by the Republican party. The demands upon his time were enormous—visiting committees to be received, an extensive correspondence to keep up and many grave problems connected with his new position to be solved. But in the midst of it all he took the time to write a letter to George Latham, a good friend of his oldest son, Robert, then a student at Harvard university. The letter, the original of which is owned by Mrs. H. S. Dickerman of Springfield, Ill., reads as follows:

"I have scarcely felt greater pain in my life than on learning yesterday from Bob's letter, that you had failed to enter Harvard university. And yet there is very little in it, if you will allow no feeling of discouragement to seize, and prey upon you. It is a certain truth, that you can enter, and graduate in Harvard University; and having made the attempt, you must succeed in it. 'Must' is the word."

"I know not how to aid you, save in the assurance of one of mature age, and much severe experience, that you can not fail, if you resolutely determine that you will not."

"The President of the institution, can scarcely be other than a kind man; and doubtless he would grant you an interview, and point out the readiest way to remove, or overcome, the obstacles which have thwarted you."

"In your temporary failure there is no evidence that you may not be a better scholar, and a more successful man in the great struggle of life, than many others, who have entered College more easily."

"Again I say let no feeling of discouragement prey upon you, and in the end you are sure to succeed."

An interesting view of the increasing demands made upon Lincoln after he became President is presented by Mr. Angle in the text which supplements some of the letters and papers dated in 1861. "To a greater extent, perhaps, than any other President, Lincoln held himself at the disposal of callers," he writes. "Patience on the part of the visitor was the only quality requisite to the attainment of an interview. Of course the number who sought audience was immense."

"Normally, the stream of callers would have subsided after the last appointments to office had been made. But, because of the war, it never ceased. Men seeking commissions, officers seeking promotion, inventors with all sorts of new devices of destruction, wives and mothers of soldiers wanting favors of all kinds—these and others crowded the Presidential offices at every opportunity. Lincoln listened to all. Sometimes he acted summarily upon the case, sometimes he referred the applicant to the proper official with a certain line of action recommended, and sometimes he simply wrote a brief letter or card of introduction."

Lincoln's kindly humor and his ability to smile through the darkest hours of those four tragic years are reflected in this note of recommendation, the original of which is preserved in the Henry E. Huntington library in California:

"This man wants to WORK—so uncommon a want that I think it ought to be gratified. I shall be obliged to any Head of a Bureau, or Department, who can find work for him."

"Lincoln's interference in army discipline was notorious," writes Mr. Angle. "The Secretary of War, the Attorney-General, the Judge-Advocate-General, the commanders of the army in the field—all protested against his wholesale clemency, but he went right on making each case referred to him the subject of personal investigation, and remitting sentences wherever it was at all possible."

The following order, the original of which is owned by Gabriel Wells of New York city, is typical of this fact: "It is said that Simon Ready has recently been tried by one of our Military Courts in this city. I can tell no more of the case; but his poor wife is bothering me and I will thank you, if practicable, to procure the record and report on the case."

JESUS THE GREAT PHYSICIAN

LESSON TEXT—Luke 4:33-44; 5:12-15, 18-26.

GOLDEN TEXT—Surely he hath borne our griefs, and carried our sorrows; yet we did esteem him stricken, smitten of God, and afflicted.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus and Health. JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus and Health. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Our Friend and Helper. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christian Ministry to Physical Ills.

I. Jesus Healing a Demoniac (4:33-37).

While engaged in teaching in the synagogue, Jesus was interrupted by a man who had a "spirit of an unclean devil," who cried out with a loud voice asking that he be left alone, professing knowledge of him as the Holy One of God. Jesus rebuked the demon and compelled him to come out of the man. At the command of Jesus the demon came out of the man with a violent struggle. This healing shows Jesus not only gracious but powerful to set free men who are under the power of the Devil, and also his ability to free men from the whole brood of diabolical passions such as lust, envy, anger, and jealousy which rule them. This manifestation of divine power amazed the people, causing them to cry out, "What a word is this!"

II. Jesus Heals Peter's Mother-in-Law of a Great Fever (vv. 38-41).

This woman was prostrate with a great fever. They of Peter's household besought Jesus in her behalf. He rebuked the fever and it left her so that she immediately arose and ministered unto them. No earthly physician has ever been known to heal in that way. Divine healing is immediate and complete. It is most important that we distinguish between divine healing and faith healing. Faith healing is the result of the action of the mind upon the body, and is measured by the degree of the faith of the individual, while divine healing is the action of the power of God upon the diseased one and is always complete and immediate.

As a result of this manifestation of divine power, the fame of Jesus spread abroad and many sick of divers diseases were brought unto him and he healed them all.

III. Jesus Heals a Leper (5:12-15).

Leprosy was a most loathsome and terrible disease. Because of its foulness, one afflicted therewith was an outcast. Leprosy was incurable by man, therefore, the leper was regarded as hopeless and dead. In response to the leper's earnest request Jesus touched him and bade the leprosy to depart, and immediately he was healed and cleansed. Leprosy is a type of sin. Though sin is loathsome, hideous and separating, Jesus has power to save those who come to him by faith.

IV. Jesus Heals a Paralytic (5:18-26).

1. Watched by the Pharisees and doctors of the law (v. 17). The spreading abroad of Jesus' fame only incited jealousy on the part of these men. They did not want to get too close to him, but close enough to know what was going on.

2. The paralytic brought to Jesus (vv. 18, 19). This is a fine lesson of Christian service. They could not heal the man, but being moved by sympathy they co-operated in bringing him to Jesus who could heal and restore. Their efforts in bringing the man show their willingness to go to pains and trouble to bring the needy man to Jesus.

3. The man's sins forgiven (v. 20). Jesus looked back of the palsy to its cause—sin. The effect of his sin was before Jesus, but he proceeded to deal with the cause of it. All disease and death are the result of sin. The Lord deals first with that which was at the root of the trouble. Jesus saw the faith not only of those who brought him but of the man himself.

4. The purpose of miracles (vv. 21, 22). The Pharisees accused Christ of blasphemy when he declared the man's sins forgiven. Jesus showed them that back of the beneficent deed to the man was the demonstration of his deity. The main purpose in the working of miracles is the authentication of the divine mission of the one performing them. While the divine power and authority are thus shown, the wisdom and love of God are shown in that in all cases the supernatural work is for the good of the individual.

5. The relative value of physical ill and moral and spiritual maladies (vv. 23, 24). Physical ill is less serious than the sins which cause them.

Cold in Head, Chest or Throat?

RUB Musterole well into your chest and throat—almost instantly you feel easier. Repeat the Musterole-rub once an hour for five hours...

Those good old-fashioned cold remedies—oil of mustard, menthol, camphor—are mixed with other valuable ingredients in Musterole to make it what doctors call a "counter-irritant" because it gets action and is not just a salve.

It penetrates and stimulates blood circulation and helps to draw out infection and pain. Used by millions for 20 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. Keep Musterole handy—jars, tubes. All druggists.

To Mothers—Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

Damage by Plant Disease

One and a half million dollars annually is the average amount of the injury plant diseases do in the United States each year, says Dr. R. J. Haskell, plant pathologist of the Department of Agriculture. In Canada the estimated annual losses average about 15,000,000 pounds sterling.

Beggars Can Choose

"I held notes on him as security for business that he transacted through his office—properties I could not afford to have in my name. He thought I would not dare to sell his notes, he having so much information about me. No use going into the ugly details. He woke up too late to find out that his transactions were with me—the company he was dealing with was mine—he sold my property to me. It was I who bought from him what he had no right to sell. I stopped payment on the checks he held, I had his notes, and he was holding—the bag."

"But how could you? That's not right. You couldn't do that."

"Why not?" asked Pastano. "I was cleverer than he. What could he do? What could he say? I called in his notes. Either he had to pay me, or I would sell them to his bank for discount. He put in his stone stock—sound property—and recovered his notes. Then he found all his debts due on the same day. He lost seventeen accounts in one afternoon—business taken right out of his office. He sold his car and yesterday he mortgaged his house. And today—unless it's stopped—he's going to be indicted."

Ernestine got to her feet.

"But, Ruby—how can you do this to Loring? He does know things about you—"

"Very little," answered Pastano evenly. "Fragments—nothing whole. Part of this deal—part of that. His own activities will shine much worse in court than his connections with me. Do you think I am fool enough to put myself in jeopardy with a man like Loring?"

Ernestine made a little moan, and he began to speak quickly, vehemently, with a strange sternness and justice in his face.

"He came to me—he sought the connection—he was eager for any work. He offered to do things for me that I wouldn't let him do. He was well paid, and he didn't play the game. His fees were big—business was thrown to him from a dozen directions inaccessible to him five years ago. He sat where he wanted to sit—in the lap of city politics, and he grew weary of his mistress. He wished to exploit her—desert her. So he schemed and planned. But you cannot get into the whirlpool and then out again—"

Ernestine, looking at him, felt the sucking breath of the vortex. "But what have I to do with this?" she asked. "What can I do for Loring? You haven't told me this without some purpose."

"First let me show you why I can do nothing for him myself—it is easier to start a landslide than to stop it. It was my intention—no, my determination—to ruin him, to have him degraded, disgraced, sent to the penitentiary, if I could. It seemed necessary. Here, all about me, are these young men—Lieutenants—gangsters, if you like the newspaper word better. They are my army. We must have loyalty in any army. We must have obedience. Loyalty and obedience, first, because they have confidence in me, that I am wise, that I will take care of them while they stay with me, that I am competent to meet all situations. But if a man is disloyal, all the rest must see what becomes of him. Loyalty, first, because of confidence; second, because of fear. When admiration falls, fear remains."

"But you are not going to ruin Loring now?" she said eagerly. "You have changed your mind—you have some plan?"

"No," he said slowly, "no, not I. I have no plan to save Loring Hamilton. I have no desire to save him. I would not lift my little finger for Loring Hamilton. It is inevitable that he should fall, should be punished. Even if I wanted to do something for him now, I could not. His treachery is known to others as well as to myself. Money is needed. If I should withdraw money from my own private sources, or if I should withdraw money from funds that are available for gifts, when it is necessary, it would be instantly known. No—in the first place, I don't want to help Loring. If he were my own brother, I would feel that he must follow his course alone. Nor could I help him, even if I liked, but—he looked at her intently so that for a moment it seemed that she was lost, hypnotized by his great dark eyes—"you can help him, if you like, Ernestine."

"Tell me," she whispered. "What can I do?"

He put his hand in his pocket and took out his big silver watch. Laying the flat of his palm upon it, he twisted it, unscrewed the back of the watch and took from between the outer and inner cases a small piece of paper, folded once across. He sat, his dismembered watch in one hand, and the piece of paper in the other, and said to her:

"I know that you have your own standards of honor—I have exposed myself, in this talk, knowing your code. But now, I must ask you if you are capable of secrecy. No one but Will must know of this. He must know."

"I promise," she said at once.

He put the folded paper in her hand, and kept his finger upon it, so that it remained closed.

"There is a name here. This afternoon, within an hour after this bank is closed—before four o'clock, to be exact, twenty thousand dollars, in cash, must be placed in the hands of this person, and the indictment against Loring will be dropped."

Ernestine was very pale. "A bribe?" she said, her throat dry. "But that's—wrong."

He was very gentle.

"Wrong, yes—no doubt. But we are at a place now—where it is the lesser evil, which must be chosen—not right or wrong. A bribe—ugly word. Yes, there is a regular scale of prices for indictments. This money must be spread. It will take twenty thousand dollars to do it. You have the money. I take a great risk upon myself—this talk, this name, this opportunity, but I wished you to have it."

He beamed upon her now—pleased as a child who has been good and waits for praise. Ernestine was very agitated.

"How do you know I have this money?"

"I am a director in this bank—you have it—here."

"But that money is for Will. I've been saving it for nearly two years."

"He Was Well Paid, and He Didn't Play the Game."

I can't give that money for Loring. It's Will's."

"I'll not pay for Loring," said Pastano sternly, and he shrugged, his face altered, hard. "Why should I? You can—if you won't, he's sunk—that's all."

"No, no," cried Ernestine, "not that—not Will's money. I won't do it, Ruby. I can't. Loring will have to go down in his own wreckage. Why should I pay a bribe for him? Why should I rob Will of his very chance, for Loring? This isn't just money—this is Will's future—his peace, his happiness—this is my marriage—this money."

He was silent. He stared at her. She could feel in him disappointment. He was disappointed in her! He, monster that he was, dared to judge her!

"You see," she said desperately, "Will isn't always going to be a cartoonist. He's going to do something else. He hasn't any sense about money. I learned about money, when we were poor, but Will has never learned. He's extravagant, foolish. I found out long ago that if he had fifty cents in his pocket, or fifty dollars, it was all the same to him. And then—"

I discovered that Will wanted to be an artist, that he wanted to work in colors, that he hated the cats. And I began to save. I've kept up a front on a small amount of money. I spent less than twelve thousand dollars last year, and Will earned thirty thousand. But it's been for Will. I'm not naturally economical, or close, but I did it for Will."

"Perhaps Will would want you to do this—ask him."

"Perhaps he would. It would be like him to throw away his chance for Loring. But Will doesn't know I've got this money. Nobody knows, except the bank clerks. I thought a savings account was a private matter. Will has a studio down near here—if he could study—if he could go to Paris."

"I know," said Pastano. "He rents his workroom from me. I've seen some of his stuff. Well—Loring can go to jail then, for all of me, and if you are subpoenaed into court, to testify about things that happened at Langley lake three summers ago, don't say I didn't warn you."

He sighed. His eyes were sad and tired. The tears sprang down Ernestine's cheeks. "Don't think I don't appreciate this—I know that you endanger yourself—your very life—by talking to me. I know enough about all this to know what you are doing—it's generous, but, oh, Ruby, it is Will I love—Will, all the time."

"Your sister—" he objected.

"Why should I sacrifice Will for Loring and Lillian?" she said passionately. "It will take me a long time to accumulate this money again. And simply to give it away—to send it out blindly, and not even know where it goes! Loring has always hated Will—has tried to harm him. And now you ask me to give up Will's chance. He can't wait forever. His gift will die, he'll go stale."

"Loring has loved you, Ernestine." She stopped her incoherent speech. She looked at him with dark eyes, and her face grew very pale.

"That time," Pastano said, "when you were ill—when Elaine was born, we would not have found you, if it had not been for Loring."

"But Will found me," she quavered. "Yes—after Loring had torn the town up—had organized a search—had warned me. Will would still be wandering about Sheridan Park. And after Will found you, what did he do? You might have died there, without proper care. It was Loring's practical energy and ability—his decision and his efficiency which saved you."

He got up and moved about restlessly. He seemed almost to plead with her.

"That's why I couldn't sleep last night. It came to me all the time—he loves our Ernestine, fool and traitor that he is. He would give everything he has—for her. It is her sister, her family, her family name. She is mixed in it—she will be hurt by it. So this morning, I came to town. I have seen the bank ledger from time to time. I have watched your private fortune growing with much interest, and known, or thought, that Will was ignorant of it. So this morning I came to town, and carefully I have made this possible. And now, you do not see it."

He was putting his watch together as he spoke, but he left the slip of paper in Ernestine's hand.

"It's one o'clock," he said. "The bank closes at three. Suppose you go and talk to Will. A woman ought not take a step like this, anyhow, without talking to her husband."

"I'm not going to give Will's money to Loring," Ernestine said despairingly.

Mr. Pastano opened the door for her, but did not answer her low "good-by."

Ernestine went swiftly down the stairs and out into the brightness of the street.

"I'm not going to ask Will," she thought stubbornly. "He'll just tell me to do what Pastano wants. I'm not going to do it."

She ran for a car going north and boarded it. She rode as far as Belmont avenue, jumped up suddenly and got out of the street car. A taxi stood before a drug store across the street. Ernestine ran across through the traffic and got into the taxi.

"Please hurry," she said, and gave him the address of the old office building near the river, where Will led his secret life.

She felt that she could not get to Will soon enough, now she was started. She paid the taxi driver at the door and went quickly into the dim and dusty doorway.

Chinese Leaders Split on Educational Plans

China, unlike most nations, has nothing that can really be called a national sport. Japan, in much the same circumstances, adopted baseball; but baseball in China has never caught on to any great extent. Mission schools and Y. M. C. A.'s, however, have done much to teach forms of sport to elementary and middle school students, with the result that basketball, tennis and football are beginning to prove fairly popular, but only among an extremely small percentage of the nation's many millions of youths. As far as the revival of folklore (which is being considered by the social education department of the ministry of education) is concerned, it is expected that the ministry will encounter difficulties. China is rich in folklore, but while with one hand the government is trying to encourage its revival, with the other hand the government is launching a bitter campaign against superstition. Much of China's ancient folklore deals with supernatural beings, and with historical and mythical characters endowed with supernatural powers. What is needed, according to educational leaders, is the development of a critical faculty among students and the populace which will enable them to dissociate themselves entirely from the million and one popular myths which form the basis of their mental texture, if not of their religious beliefs.

Unfounded Popular Belief

That a fire caused by lightning can not be extinguished with water is an old popular belief which still survives in many parts of the country, says an article in Pathfinder Magazine. Fire is fire no matter how started, whether by a match, spontaneous combustion, or a flash of lightning. A fire produced by lightning has the same physical properties as other fire and can be extinguished in the same manner.

Divide Hatching Duty

Among the true ostriches of the old world several females lay their eggs in the same nest and the male sits on the eggs during the night while the hens take turns at the job during the day.

Worrying Chief Cause of Mental Breakdown

Nearly everybody, says Dr. Horatio M. Pollock, director of the statistical bureau of the New York state department of mental hygiene, has a mental breaking point somewhere; if physical or mental stresses reach that point almost any of us is likely to give way. There is, however, little need for the generality to worry unduly about this, for Doctor Pollock says that 955 out of every 1,000 persons born in New York state will probably manage to escape all forms of mental disease.

Persons with well-adjusted minds who rarely get angry or excited or agitated or show undue emotion in any form apparently have the best chance to escape. Somewhat less fortunate are those who have fairly well-adjusted minds, but who take their triumphs or losses at bridge or in the stock market too emotionally. Doctor Pollock speaks with less assurance of two other types of individuals—those mentally so out of adjustment that they are jealous, quarrelsome, faultfinding and suspicious of everybody who does not agree with them and those who go to pieces in unusual circumstances for want of courage and mental and physical stamina.

Mental diseases is of many causes and of many kinds. It may come from bodily injury or deterioration. Fortunately, many forms can be prevented by judicious attention to the body's health. The department of mental hygiene is engaged in a study of all the means of prevention.

Persons in normal health appear to be reasonably safe from mental breakdown so long as they take proper care of themselves. Most persons do more worrying than there is need for.—New York Sun.

World Growing Warmer, But by Slow Degrees

According to Dr. J. W. Humphreys, a famous physicist and weather expert, the trend is toward a hotter earth; but the warming-up process is so slow there is no cause for fearing the heat will torture this generation or several to come. In fact, Doctor Humphreys says, next summer may be delightfully cool. The evidence is that glaciers in all parts of the world have been on the average slowly retreating since the culmination of the ice age, and they are still slowly retreating. We are quite aware that the ice sheet left Stockholm, Sweden, about 9,000 years ago and left Niagara falls about 25,000 or 30,000 years ago. The progress of heat increase in Great Britain and the rest of the world is nothing to get excited about, Doctor Humphreys says. There always will be temporary flurries of high or low temperatures for a season, for a year or for a period of years, but the average over any consecutive period of twenty years is practically the same as over any other twenty consecutive years of which there is official record.—Montreal Family Herald.

Build Windmill Air Taxi

Equipped with revolving wings so that it may rise or descend almost vertically, a new air taxi is being constructed in Britain. It will carry four passengers and its 400-horse power motor will drive it at a speed of 130 miles an hour. Instead of the usual fixed wings it will have four revolving planes like a huge propeller. The inventor believes it can land or start from most any flat-roofed building.

Cook County Farm Bureau Holds Annual Meeting

The Annual Meeting of the Cook County Farm Bureau was held in the Masonic Temple, at LaGrange, Illinois, January 21st. About two hundred farmers were in attendance, even though the weather was extremely cold and the roads very icy. The chief interests of the meeting centered around the election of officers and the speaker of the day, Mr. Donald Kirkpatrick, legal counsel of the Illinois Agricultural Ass'n.

Each township having fifteen or more resident, paid up members elected a director. The following are the directors who were elected:

Barrington — (absent. To be elected.)
Bloom — Harvey Adair.
Bremen — A. A. Fulton.
Elk Grove — Wm. Rothwing.
Hanover — (Absent. To be elected.)
Lemont — Tom Welter, Jr.
Lyons — John Neher.
Orland — Chas. Erickson.
Palatine — (Absent. To be elected.)

Palos — Ezra McClaughry.
Rich — D. A. Nietfeldt.
Schaumburg — Fred Pfingsten.
Thornton — Frank Diekmann.
Wheeling — Alfred Busse.
Worth — Jacob Ouwenga.
At Large — Nick Ettama, Jr.

The officers of the Farm Bureau will be elected at the meeting of the Executive Board, which will be held the first part of February.

Mr. Kirkpatrick, in his talk, stressed very strongly the activities of the state organization and the services which it can give the members if they will but avail themselves of them. He stated very definitely that the biggest problem for the farmers in Cook county was the matter of commodity marketing and very sincere efforts should be put forth in the next few years on these projects.

Mr. O. G. Barrett, Farm Adviser, in his annual report, stressed mainly the growth of the organization in the last year. The Cook County Farm Bureau has had a phenomenal growth in the last four years. Every year, the organization has practically doubled itself, until, at present there are eight hundred fifty-three members. The success and growth of an organization of the type of the Farm Bureau is pretty largely due to the services which it is able to give its members. The more members the organization gets, the more services it can give. In the last year, the organization added the following new projects: 4-H Club Work, which is a project for the education and development of rural boys and girls; Farm Supply Companies in both ends of the county; "The Countryside", an official 12-page publication, published twice a month; and last, but not least, the Gardeners' Supply, Inc., which is a commercial concern organized to furnish all gardeners' needs, especially insecticides, a product which the truck gardeners of this area have been unable to get.

NEW LENOX

The teachers and pupils of the 7th and 8th grades of the village school surprised their principal, Laurel Jackson, after the close of school Friday evening. The event was in honor of his birthday. After the games the honored guest was presented with a set of bookends. Refreshments were served.

The Boy Scouts met in regular weekly session Saturday evening in their cabin.

Mrs. L. B. Karr, of Joliet, spent the weekend with Mrs. E. J. Taylor.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Batson, of Oak Park, were guests over the weekend at the home of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Batson.

FORD SMOOTHNESS

The new Ford has more than twenty ball and roller bearings

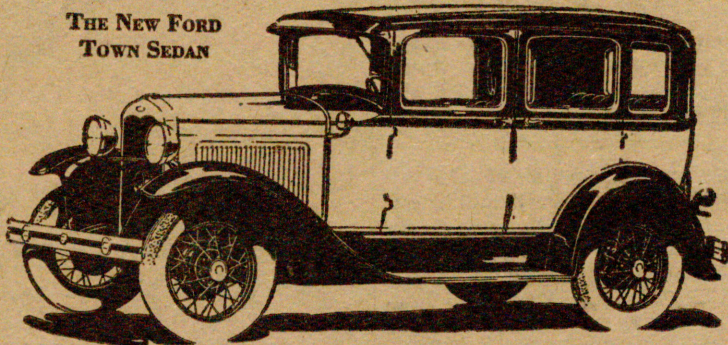

EVIDENCE of the high quality built into the new Ford is the extensive use of ball and roller bearings. There are more than twenty in all — an unusually large number. Each bearing is adequate in size and carefully selected for the work it has to do.

At some points in the Ford chassis you will find ball bearings. At others, roller bearings are used regardless of their higher cost. The deciding factor is the performance of the car.

The extensive use of ball and roller bearings in the new Ford insures smoother operation, saves gasoline, increases speed and power, gives quicker pick-up, decreases noise, and gives greater reliability and longer life to vital moving parts.

Other outstanding features that make the new Ford a value far above the price are the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield, silent, fully enclosed four-wheel brakes, four Houdaille double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers, aluminum pistons, chrome silicon alloy valves, three-quarter floating rear axle, Rustless Steel, the extensive use of fine steel forgings, and unusual accuracy in manufacturing.

District 142 Votes on School Bonds Saturday

School district 142 will vote on a $25,000 bond issue for the Forest Ridge School at a special election to be held tomorrow, Saturday, January 31, from 12 noon to 7 p. m., at the school building.

The Forest Ridge school was built at 149th st., and 52nd ave., in 1928, at a cost of $35,000. Today there are $25,099.50 in outstanding anticipation warrants, bearing 6 per cent interest. On account of the low valuation, the re-assessment, and the failure to pay taxes on the part of many property delinquent owners, the district is some $5,000 in arrears for 1928.

The bond issue, if passed, will carry the district over the present crisis, since there will be no payment on the issue until January, 1934; there will also be a saving on the interest since the bonds bear 5 1/2 per cent interest in place of the 6 per cent on anticipation warrants.

In 1927 there were 32 pupils and one teacher in the old stone school on 147th st., (the Maple Farm school). Now there are 109 pupils and 3 teachers. There was no building fund when the new building was started.

The school trustees are James B. Meigs and T. G. Moore.

They point out that under the proposed bond issue the people moving into the district in the next 20 years will pay their share of the cost of the school.

Midlothian Quintet Defeated 16-15 In Close Game

Rooters See Mokena Nose Out

Clarke-Hulett Five By Score 16-15
With thirty seconds remaining of the overtime period, Mokena's center sank a basket, which gave his team the winning edge over the Clarke-Hulett Five in a fiercely contested battle, held at Mokena high school gym Thursday evening, January 22.

The feature of the game was the disrupting of the team play of Midlothian's squad by having men ejected on four personal fouls. The Chevrolet boys were greatly handicapped when Hille, McPherson and Stevenson went out on personal fouls in the second half. This left the team with four players against five.

"Ossie" Gronwall and Nick Stuart led the scoring with five baskets and one free throw between them. The aggressive and defensive play of both teams was outstanding.

At the end of the first period, Mokena was at the upper end of a 5-2 score. Gronwall having accounted for the lone tally.

The next period changed things for the Clarke-Hulett boys, and the count at the half was 10 to 10.

An attack led by Stuart made the score 14 to 10 at the close of the third period. Neither team could secure much at the start of the fourth quarter. Then Mokena came through with two baskets at close of the final period, which tied the score 14 to 14. The last tally came just 2 seconds before the gun was fired ending the game.

In the three-minute overtime period Midlothian was honored with a free throw, putting them ahead 15 to 14, but Mokena's fast center sunk a long shot from the middle of the floor just second before the end of the overtime period, enabling Mokena to win the hard fought game.

Markham Votes to Disannex Section of Village

At the board meeting of Markham Thursday last, it was voted 4 to 2 to disannex that part of the village lying east of the Illinois Central tracks. A petition was presented signed by a majority of the property owners living in that district, which is cut off from the rest of the village by the tracks.

The board struggled with the solution of the bond issue on Supplemental No. 56443, which will give the contractor a balance of $9,111.18, and held up the signing pending the drawing up of a resolution. A court order and a contract prevent any further possibility of a supplemental on this sewer and water job.

Judge Goessel turned in $127 in fine money. Chief Swanson was authorized to represent the board on the crime prevention group recently organized in Oak Park.

Gardens Water Directors

Issue Statement to Users

There has been some criticism of the new pumping equipment which has recently been installed by the Midlothian Gardens Water association, and it is the desire of at least some of the board of directors to make some explanations which are rightfully due the water users.

It has been said that a centrifugal pump is not efficient and that it would not work. In answer, it is only necessary to say that if opened up to capacity, the new pump will pump the water out of the well faster than the well is supplied by nature. Naturally, it follows that the water would be temporarily exhausted from the well after the pump has been running several hours, and that is exactly what happened on two occasions since the installation of the new equipment.

If and when the water should become exhausted from the well to a point below the limit of any suction pump, the pump must be re-primed.

The board of directors has foreseen the possibility of such a condition, and installed equipment to control the discharge from the pump within the limit of supply.

The waterless periods were necessary evils because it was imperative that the discharge control valve should be adjusted to the supply of water which the well will furnish.

It has also been reported that the motor furnished with the pump is inefficient and is too small. As a matter of information for the members of the association, the motor manufacturer had one of their men test the motor while operating, and in the presence of two members of the board. These tests, made with delicate instruments, showed that the motor had a current drain of less than ten amperes while operating, proving conclusively that the motor is sufficiently large, as the motor under less load, has a current drain of sixteen and one-half amperes.

It might be said that if the well will not supply as much water as the pump will handle, that the board erred in buying so large a unit. That is emphatically not the case, because

Posen Worker Loses Three Fingers

According to latest reports, John Dziuba though still confined to his home has recovered from his accident of the 19th of this month. On the morning of that date while operating a relish machine at the Libby Plant in Blue Island, he had three fingers cut off.

In running from the second floor to the doctor's office on the first floor, it is said, he had to open five steel doors on his way. The consequent delay caused considerable loss of blood and weakness.

Buda A. A. Wins From Clarke-Hulett Squad

Lights Meet Second Defeat of Tournament 30 to 16

The Midlothian eagles dropped a fast and rough tilt to the Buda A. A. lights at the Buda gymnasium Sunday, January 26.

The boys playing in their second game of the tourney, showed some fast basketball in the first half.

The Clarke-Hulett five took the lead immediately when "Ossie" Gronwall took a pass from Stuart and sunk the basket. Nick made another basket making the score 4-0. After this the Buda team started scoring fast, leaving our boys trailing behind, 8-5.

In the second quarter the Midlothian eagles were again leading 10-8, and it kept that way until the half ended.

After James and Lithgow had sunk baskets in the third period, the Buda boys began to creep up, by dropping in long shots, and at the end of the third period they led 20-14.

Hille added a basket for Midlothian, but this was the final score for the Clarke-Hulett five. Through the lack of subs, our boys weakened in the final period, and the Buda five took advantage of it by raising the score 30-16.

James led the scorers with four baskets for Buda, while Stuart and Gronwall tied for honors.

Stevenson, Hille and McPherson played their usual fine guarding throughout the whole game.

Next Sunday our boys play their third game of the American Legion Tournament against the Jackman five, starting promptly at 2:30 p. m. Tickets may be had from any member of the team for twenty-five cents. Do not forget, there are four games each Sunday, the first starting at 1:30.

ATTEND INSTALLATION

The following attended the Orland Park Legion installation Tuesday night: Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Wirtz, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Terry and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Muehauhen.

In the first place, the smallest pump made, and of a reliable manufacturer, in the judgement of the board, is the one now in service. Then, too, in a normal year, the well will supply a greater quantity of water, and it is well to have equipment that will efficiently handle an increased supply, if necessary.

It is earnestly hoped that this explanation will, in some measure satisfy those of the association members who have loyally supported their board of directors, and will serve as a silencer for those who are prone to direct destructive criticism at the very ones who have worked and are working day and night to put the Garden's Water Ass'n on a stable and efficient working basis.

Do We Want Sidewalks? Some Answers

To get the opinions of some Midlothian residents on the proposed building of sidewalks in the village, a representative of the MESSENGER asked the following question: "Are you in favor of sidewalks at the present time?"

Frank Carey, McIntosh Homes Addition: "I am in favor of sidewalks all over the village."

George Fikre, McIntosh Manor: "Sure, I am positively in its favor, especially in my own subdivision."

Frank Lilly, Gardens: "Providing the financing of the project can be handled satisfactorily."

I. S. Schwartz, Robertson's: "We have them on 147th Place and I am not in favor of them on Crawford at present—there is not enough traffic on it. Besides the widening of the street might interfere."

Wolford, Scott, Robertson's: "Sure, I want 'em."

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. M. Foote, Robertson's: "We are in favor of them. They would make our corners look much better."

Mrs. E. J. Dillon, Gardens: "We would not sign. If only the north and south walks were to be laid, we would favor them."

OUR MAIL BOX

The Editor, Midlothian Messenger.

Your recent editorials about the "Backward Board" and implied "Lack of leadership" with the facetious comments thereupon in the "Mud of Midlothian" particularly in this week's column "The Village Board" had been worth another denunciatory editorial I believe calls for answer on my part, in that, by the good will of the people, I am the present "leader" and with full recognition that our acts are subject to commendation and criticism.

You, as well as any other well informed person, must admit that the present Board has been, is, and will continue laboring under unusual difficulties and handicaps not of its own making or choosing. No long winded explanations are necessary as we all know that the "Re-Assessment" ordered by the State Legislature has brought about a chaotic condition. You, and I, and the other fellow, through no fault of our own, are quing two years taxes, the non-payment of which has disorganized and disrupted the regular and orderly administration of financial affairs and lowered and almost destroyed the credit of our Village.

The Board is suffering not from physical or mental inertia but financial paralysis, and, in this condition, I do not see how you, or any prudent person, could expect them to go "forward" with any but the most necessary affairs, having yet to liquidate bills going back to the inception of the Village.

As to improvements which are payable by special assessments I still maintain these should be brought about by the request of the majority of resident property owners affected, and that the people of Midlothian are fully aware of their wants and their needs, and are not unaware of some abortive failures along this line in our Village and nearby communities.

The Board is, and should be, ready and willing at all times to make improvements available. I believe our outstanding need is drainage and sewerage, and, in this connection, our Village engineers recently reported that the County Board has its engineers working on two possible plans for the cure of our troubles in the shape of an outlet; inasmuch as the Sanitary District has not, and, I do not believe can help in this respect.

I agree with you that the needs of this Village can and should be decided on their merits rather than on a partisan basis and am ready and willing at all times to express publicly or privately my views on our situation.

Very truly yours,
R. J. WHITE, President

C. Mundt, Dept. Adj. E. A. Hayes, Dept. Com.

The above citation was awarded our local Post for their Community activities during the past year, the major projects being as follows:—
Distributed thirty baskets at Xmas time $200.00
School Award presentations 16.00
Erected and dedicated pole and flag to village 75.00
Secured deed, furnished equipment and dedicated Robertson Park 60.00
Sponsored Camp Fire Girls.
Sponsored Boy Scouts.
Organized and entered in League Junior Baseball team 100.00
Painted "Air Marker" on Clarke-Hulett garage 30.00
Distributed among school children Flag Etiquette circulars 10.00
Purchased Street Markers (warning motorists to be careful of children) which have not as yet been placed due to State Highway Departments objections 15.00

In addition to the above, aid has been rendered to needy ex-service men in the community, for which however, we get no credit, as we are supposed to do that.

In this connection, we are glad to report that Conrad Fred Baker is recovering rapidly, and will soon be among us again.

Our Past Commander Sidell and present Commander Spoerer, recent "flu" victims, are reported as being O. K. again.

The Fourth District Meeting of the Auxiliary of the American Legion will be held at Beverly Hills tonight. All officers and some of the members of the Auxiliary of Post 691 will attend.

The Fourth District Auxiliary has jurisdiction over all units and posts which meet together at stated intervals and do all business with the head of the Fourth District president.

Bremen Township Health Topics

Eleanor Gallagher, R. N.
Rural Nursing Service of Cook Co.

At a meeting of the Council of Social Agencies at the Palmer House, January 23, Wilfred Renolds, representing the Governor's Commission, said that the registration exchange was handling 55 per cent more cases this year than ever before, that there had been 26,410 families registered during the month of December. This was 35 per cent increase over the month of November. He said there were 170 agencies registering cases through the exchange.

Mr. Insull was to have spoken, but was reported ill with the flu, and Mr. Kelley of the Catholic Charities said a few words instead. He called attention to the splendid work being done by the different agencies but specially mentioned the volunteer work being done by the women.

Wm. Henderson of New York spoke on the unemployment situation; he said the situation we are facing at present is one never before dealt with and it needed the pooling of experience and knowledge to meet the condition and the best we can do will be insufficient. He objects to the theory that we are raising funds to prevent a rebellion but insists that it is being done for humanity and charity. He advises all preserve their records of work done at this time to furnish a study for future use.

In answer to the editorial in last week's Messenger, I would like to suggest that we establish an open forum through this paper to discuss the question of sewers for Midlothian.

Building Code Again Held Up; Await Bids

The Midlothian village board had an uneventful meeting Tuesday night. Passing of the Building Code was again deferred. The MESSENGER presented the only bid for the printing of the code, so action was held up until other bids were received.

Cinderling of Harding ave., will probably be held up until the road can be graded in the spring, but cinders will be put aside for that purpose. A 20-foot culvert was proposed for the Springfield ave., entrance to the school.

Although the Parks Commission had met, there was no recommendation made. On motion of Kreis they were authorized to take the necessary steps to flood the playground if the commission saw fit.

Attorney Harper was asked to bring before the next meeting the laws on time of election and to make recommendations on a registration day.

Vouchers and bonds were ordered signed for the balance due on sidewalk assessment No. 9.

A wit remarked that no building code was needed now anyhow, as there was no use locking the garage until the car was stolen.

Democrats Hold Combination Meeting

By Dr. Joseph J. Rein

A combined meeting of the Southern Cook County Democratic Club and the Bremen Township Regular Democratic Club was held at Hacker's Hall in Calumet City last Saturday evening.

The meeting which was attended by an "overflow" crowd was presided over by John A. Orgel, Democratic District Committeeman of the Sixteenth District (Bremen), Dr. Joseph J. Rein, chairman.

After stating that the purpose of the meeting was to devise ways and means through which the two organizations could be of material assistance in furthering the candidacy of Anton J. Cermak for Mayor of Chicago and the other Democratic candidates in the coming City election, Dr. Rein said:

"The rapid growth of our townships which lie almost within the limits of Chicago make it imperative as a matter of self-interest and possibly self-preservation that we take a vital and active interest in the coming metropolitan election. Through influence with our relatives and friends who reside in the city we can do some real effective work in behalf of the candidates chosen by our Party. Especially is this true of our peerless Party leader, Anton J. Cermak whose success at the polls this Spring will assure our Party the whip-hand in both County and Chicago government.

"From either the standpoint of past-experience, past-performance or present mental make-up, Anton J. Cermak stands head and shoulders over any candidate in the field for Mayor of Chicago. In his past capacity as State Legislator, Alderman, Baliff of the Municipal Court as well as in his present office as president of the County Board, he has learned to know all the intricate business and political problems of the City and County Governments. As President of the County Board through his business-like and economic administration he has saved the taxpayers over $1,500,000 annually besides wiping out a deficit of $2,200,000. He has unionized all County, highway and institutional employment. As Mayor he will make Chicago safe, progressive and attractive. He will revive industry, employment and business. By urging your friends to vote for Mr. Cermak you will be conferring a favor upon yourselves."

Mr. Orgel in answering a discussion relative to the lack of patronage shown to the country-towns in the past, said among other things:

"The growth of our Party power in County affairs has been so rapid and amazing that sufficient patronage to satisfy the sudden demand cannot be found on the spur of the moment solely in the various departments of the County Government. However, this is our Golden Opportunity. With Anton J. Cermak as Mayor of Chicago immediately a vast amount of patronage formerly controlled by the Republicans will be thrown to our Party. I have firm belief in the integrity of Mr. Cermak, and I am wholly satisfied

GETTING RESULTS

This week we are happy to publish the suggestions of two community leaders—President R. J. White, in our communication column, and or's, Miss Eleanor Gallagher, R.N. Last week we were fortunate in having as contributors E. J. Searle, Frank Allen, and W. A. Czepl of Posen. Evidently our call for "Volunteers" received a very satisfactory response and we are grateful to them.

While we have tried to mix both commendation and criticism of the village board, perhaps we have been a trifle too censorious—we leave that to the judgement of our readers. Incidentally, our renowned "Uncle Casey" was panning the editor for his denunciations of the board last week, and not joining in with him.

At any rate, we have succeeded in getting at least two expressions of opinion. We want more. Shadow boxing with the board or anyone else is far from satisfactory. We feel free to criticize and expect to be razed in return.

Billions of Lilliputians at Your Service!

(In "Gulliver's Travels," Jonathan Swift writes of the Lilliputians, a race of people only six inches in height.)

TWENTY-FOUR hours a day, infinitesimal units of electrical energy race back and forth carrying your voice over the miles of telephone wires. They are like billions of Lilliputians working diligently to get the message through. Tireless, heedless of the weather or the hour, they are constantly on the alert for the lifting of your telephone receiver... the signal that there is work to be done—a message to go through!

Millions of dollars of plant and equipment provide the highways which carry your voice. Back of this plant and these invisible Lilliputians is the human force which creates the plant and directs its operation. Nearly 30,000 are men and women in the Illinois Bell Telephone organization. It is their aim to help you to speak clearly, quickly and cheaply to anyone, anywhere, anytime. Human and electrical forces are combined with the vast facilities of the telephone system to give the most telephone service and the best, at the least cost consistent with financial safety.

Locals ORLAND PARK

That the great territory southwest of Chicago is sincere in its demand for the completion of that great arterial highway leading into Chicago from the Southwest known as the Southwest Highway was plainly demonstrated by the magnificent turnout of representative citizens of this territory at the meeting of the Southwest Towns Chamber of Commerce held in the Orland Park Auditorium on Friday evening, January 16th. When Dr. W. R. Schussler of Orland Park, President of the Southwest Towns Chamber of Commerce called the meeting to order there were nearly 200 Southwest Highway boosters present. There were representatives present from all the towns and villages from Chicago to Manhattan and all were insistent in their demand that the Southwest Highway must be completed. The meeting was opened by the rendition of several selections by the Orland Park Band. This was followed by the reading of the minutes of the last meeting by the secretary, Judge Sherman S. Knox which on motion of W. T. Beagley, president of the Orland State Bank and seconded by James Creer, president of the Orland District School board, were unanimously approved. Dr. W. R. Schussler, president, then gave a detailed history of the movement which originated many years ago in the Chicago and Joliet Good Roads Association and culminated in the present Southwest Towns Chamber of Commerce and the Southwest Highway, which barring a few uncompleted sections, is a concrete fact. By use of maps and plats, he illustrated this progress that had been made in construction work on the Southwest Highway and pointed out the necessity for a speedy completion of the gap on which work remains to be done. He submitted a plat on which the highway, when complete was to follow a line from the Will County intersection at the Wolf Road and extend along thru the Manhattan district and connect with route 4 south of Joliet.

He was followed by Mr. Hoerrmann, Mr. Jones and Mr. Wilson of Manhattan, who talked along the same line and pledged the support of Manhattan and the territory surrounding it to the project. Senator Richard J. Barr of Joliet had expected to be present but was called away on other business as was Senator Huebsch of Brookfield. However, both senators expressed their regret at not being able to be present and sent a message to the meeting pledging their support.

Representative Frank Foster of Harvey and Anna W. Ickes of Winnetka, both members of the General Assembly from the 7th District were present, and spoke at length on the advantages that would accrue from the completion of the route as proposed and pledged their support to make this possible. Mrs. Edward A. Fleming and George A. Miller, of the board of Cook County Commissioners also added their pledge of co-operation in very splendid talks.

Mayor Jennings of Orland Park spoke on the necessity of securing better railroad transportation from the Wabash Railroad and was appointed chairman of a special committee to act on their welfare.

The officers of the Chamber of Commerce together with Chairman W. T. Beagley of the Southwest Highway Right of Way Committee were empowered to meet with the State and County Representatives to set forth the demands of the association officially.

Mr. Hoerrmann, Manhattan, supervisor from Will county was elected to the Board of Directors of the Chamber of Commerce and several new members were secured from this district. About twenty-five new members were added to the roster of the Chamber of Commerce at this meeting.

By vote of the members, the next meeting will be held subject to the call of the chair.

The Bell Telephone Co., and the Public Service Co., are repairing their lines south of here.

ZUCHELKOWSKI'S PIPE DREAM On Midlothian Parks and Playgrounds

Happy children playing games, young ladies and young men swimming, others boating in the lagoons—while elder folks content themselves talking about Midlothian and its growth in the last decade. Where? In Midlothian Park located at 145th and Crawford avenue, on a state highway running thru Chicago from extreme north side to the south beyond Lincoln highway, with Midlothian Park used as a Resting Place, on the journey to admire the work made possible by the foresight of the good people of Midlothian who were farsighted enough to see the value of Park and Playground sites while the village was in its "infancy."

Midlothian Park, a ten acre tract with a swimming pool, boating lagoon, base ball diamond, tennis courts, yes, and even rustic furniture on an island in the lagoon. Refreshment stands, benches, playground for the Kiddies, and a lot more. A wonderful spot for "Basket" picnics and the like.

What a park and how proud we could be of it. Often taking our friends who visit from Chicago, wouldn't it be "A Grand and Glorious Feeling" to take them to the "Gardens" "Robertson's" and "McIntosh" and show them our wonderful playgrounds and recreation centers, which the foresight of our people made possible. A place for the old and young to go for diversion.

Bang—Boom—Bang—Bang Gosh Almighty it was just a "pipe dream" of Zuchelkowski's.

But though only a pipe dream, fellow citizens of Midlothian, its food for thought. Look at our nice new school. "Gee, its a dandy." That's just what we can say about our Parks and Playgrounds when WE GET THEM. The MESSENGER, faithful and true, has been an ardent supporter of parks and playgrounds. Are you?

It can be done. No word as 'cant'. Now is the time to start. Think it over and send your suggestions and comments to the MIDLOTHIAN MESSENGER. Be frank in your comments, pro and con. Put your thoughts on Parks and Playgrounds in writing.

The Mud of Midlothian

Ended are the long years of strife. Silent are the tongues that hurled invective and scorn. The air that shook and rattled to the thunder of debate and the clamor of dispute, is still. Peace, gentle peace reigns at The Midlothian depot.

Al. Weinberg has won; George Foose has taken to his bed.

To the gentleman who asked for and received the two rabbits said to have been shot by Clare Moore, Uncle Casey said, "Good evening". And the gentleman said, "It was till our cat died." "You fed her the rabbits"; surmised Uncle Casey. "What insight!", murmured the glmn. "What a waste!", sighed Uncle Casey. "Oh no", rejoined the glmn. "We'll give you the skin," "Oh, a rabbits fur neck-piece," smiled U. C. "Elno", said the glmn, "Cats fur to make kitten breeches."

Midlothian had to build a one hundred and forty thousand dollar school to get a notice in the Trib.

A bill to provide for the appointment of an additional district judge for the southern district of Illinois introduced by Congressman Frank M. Ramey has passed the house of representatives at Washington. The Illinois delegation stands back of the measure and, if it can be passed in the senate, it will give the southern district an extra judge. Congressman Ramey did not enter the race for renomination in the primaries last year but would not be eligible to appointment for this judgeship on account of having introduced the bill. He is receiving commendation for having put this bill through the house of representatives.

The number of cattle on feed in Illinois January 1 was about 11 per cent less than that of a year ago, according to a joint survey made by the Illinois and federal departments of agriculture.

An average of 14.6 days per month was the amount of time Illinois coal mines worked during 1930, according to the statement of the state department of mines and minerals, 51,719,353 tons of coal being mined.

A bill fixing the license fees for all automobiles in the state at $2 per year was introduced in the legislature recently by Representative James T. Burns, of Kankakee.

In announcing the opening of bids for construction of a bridge over the Wabash river at Vincennes, Ind., Director H. H. Cleveland of the department of public works and buildings explained that the cost is to be divided equally between the two states. Illinois has charge of supervising the construction of a bridge over the Wabash at Mt. Carmel and Indiana will have charge of the construction of the bridge at Vincennes.

Gov. Louis L. Emmerson has appointed an entirely new tax commission composed of Omer N. Custer of Galesburg, former state treasurer; David Kinley, Urbana, president-emeritus of University of Illinois; Charles Krutkoff, Chicago, former chairman Cook county board of assessors; Charles Ringer, Chicago, former secretary Cook county board of assessors; A. D. Rodenburg, of Centralia, former assistant attorney general. Mr. Custer was designated as chairman of the board. These appointments were sent to the senate January 15 and were promptly confirmed. All but Mr. Kinley, who is in California, qualified at once. These men have a thorough knowledge of taxation, economics and finance.

The first bill introduced into the senate on the opening of the general assembly was by Senator James J. Barbour of Chicago. It proposes licensing drivers of all automobiles, and fixes penalties for driving without license, obtaining licenses fraudulently, and also for those responsible for accidents. The fee would be seventy-five cents for a license which would run three years. All those who are now driving cars and make affidavit that they have been driving for the past year would receive their license without examination. All others would be required to take an examination covering eyesight, ability to read road signs, knowledge of the motor laws and demonstrate their ability to drive.

The Mid-Day Luncheon club of Springfield will observe the one hundred and twenty-second birthday anniversary of Abraham Lincoln with an open meeting at the state arsenal February 11. Gov. Louis L. Emmerson has been invited to preside at the meeting. Ambassador Katsuli Debuschi, ambassador to Japan to the United States; Gov. Wilbur M. Bricker of Michigan, and Gov. William H. Murray of Oklahoma, will be guests of honor and speakers.

Representative Sol Handy of Marshall has introduced a bill in the legislature cutting the salaries of judges and clerks of election in counties outside Cook county to $4.00 per day and in Cook county to $7.00. One day's pay would be allowed for all elections except state primaries and presidential election, for which two days' pay would be allowed.

Three outstanding features of the five-day harness race card at the state fair this summer will be: Horse Review three-year-old futurity trot, $8,000 purse; three-year-old pace, $2,000; and two-year-old trot, $4,000. In addition a purse of $1,000 will be divided between the breeders of the horses that win first money in the three classics. The fair has been placed on the Grand circuit.

Mrs. John A. McClelland, widow of the late Gen. John A. McClelland of Civil war fame, died in Peoria, January 14. The remains were brought to Springfield and interred in Oak Ridge cemetery by the side of her husband, who died in 1900. Mrs. McClelland was ninety-six years of age.

A measure has been introduced in the national house of representatives increasing the membership of that body by 40. Under the bill Illinois would have 20 members instead of 27 as at present.

Bills to do away with the death penalty for murder and kidnapping were introduced by Representative George W. Blackwell of Chicago. The penalties proposed are fourteen years to life for murder, and five years to life for kidnapping.

Representative Thomas J. O'Grady of Chicago introduced House Bill No. 1, repealing the Illinois seizure and seizure law and had it advanced to second reading without reference to committee by a vote of 79 to 53.

The Chicago Civic Opera company closes its season at Chicago, January 24, and leaves for its annual tour of the United States. Mary Garden has had several of the leading roles in the operas offered this season.

Senator William B. McCauley, of Olney, introduced a bill in the senate recently taxing all retail and wholesale stores in the state. One store will be taxed $2; two to five owned by the same person or corporation, $25 each; six to twenty, $75 each, and in excess of twenty, $100 each per year. The net proceeds of the act would revert to the common school funds of the state.

The state fire marshal's office announces that 52 "firebugs" were convicted in Illinois last year, establishing a new record for the fire prevention division of the department of trade and commerce.

During the last year 17,539 children in Illinois were given visual acuity tests by nurses of the Illinois Society for the Prevention of Blindness. Of this number 4,984 were sent to specialists, and more than 1,300 of this group have been reported back as having the defects corrected, and 197 more placed in sight-saving classes. Seventy babies were saved from blindness by the work of the ophthalmia nurse maintained by the society.

Representative Charles D. Franz has introduced a bill in the legislature to simplify registration of families who move.

Closed seasons on all game in Illinois will have to be established unless the 1931 session of the general assembly submits to the people a constructive program for sanctuaries and breeding grounds and the people approve such a program at the 1932 election. C. F. Mansfield, secretary of uniform conservation laws commission predicted in an interview here.

"The greatly reduced supply of all kinds of game in Illinois," Mansfield said, "cannot much longer withstand the inroads of hawks, owls and other predatory birds and animals, as well as the kill by the ever-increasing army of hunters unless a definite program is adopted for the establishment of closed sanctuaries in every county, such as was planned under the state-wide system of forest preserves and public recreation grounds bond issue which was submitted to the voters at the last November 4th election," he said.

"All of us hope the state of Illinois will not be compelled to adopt this desperate measure so the children of the future may see a quail, a rabbit or a fish outside of a museum."

The highway department is now occupying the third, fourth and fifth floors of the annex to the Centennial building. The Illinois commerce commission will occupy the first floor and part of the second about the first of February, and the insurance liquidation bureau will occupy part of the basement.

Representative Henry Sonnenschein, of Chicago, has introduced bills in the house changing the date of primary elections for state officers from April to September.

A. L. Whittenberg, secretary of the Illinois State Teachers Examining board, was the speaker at the mid-year graduation exercises of the Springfield high school, January 22. One hundred nine students were in the class.

Senator Harold C. Kessinger of Aurora has introduced a joint resolution in the general assembly proposing to submit a call to the voters for a constitutional convention, the vote to be taken at the next general election.

Thirteen gasoline tax cases were dismissed recently by Judge Charles J. Briggles for want of prosecution, with fourteen similar cases still on the docket for early consideration. These cases involve collections for January, 1927.

Senator Arthur A. Huebsch and Representative William C. Thon have introduced bills to do away with the party circle at the head of ballot columns and group all candidates for a given office under the title of the office.

The Illinois mining town of Nokomis is to put up another signboard. On the concrete highway, near Hillsboro, is a large sign that tells passing motorists they are "twelve miles to Nokomis, home of Jim Bottomley." On the other side of Nokomis another sign tells motorists about Charley Ruffing, the Yankee pitcher, who also lives there. Now that Andy Bednar, another native of Nokomis, is a member of the Pittsburgh Pirates, merchants have decided to honor him with a similar signboard.

When the groves are in their prime,
And far away in the future,
Is the frosty autumn-time!

HINTS FOR HOMEMAKERS

Caramel is a favorite flavoring with a large majority of people. It is equally as good as a flavoring for meat sauces, soups and made dishes, as in desserts and ice creams. It may be quickly and easily prepared as follows:

Melt a cupful of granulated sugar slowly in a smooth omelet pan and cook until it becomes a rich brown, being careful to avoid scorching. Pour in a cupful of boiling water and stir until a thick sirup is formed. The caramel may be kept indefinitely if kept covered or bottled.

Ink stains on the fingers can be removed by rubbing with a cloth moistened with household ammonia. Rinse the hands in clear water afterwards.

Lemon juice and sunshine is an excellent remover of rust spots on linen or white fabrics.

When it is necessary to use boiled water for drinking it will taste better if it is poured back and forth from two pitchers, giving it more air.

Use a lump or two of sugar instead of starch when washing fine laces.

An easily prepared mushroom sauce which adds tremendously to the attractiveness of a broiled steak is prepared thus: Mix in a frying pan one tablespoonful each of butter and flour, stir in gradually one cupful of brown stock; when boiling point is reached add one cupful of mushrooms, salt and pepper to taste, a tablespoonful of mushroom catsup, with a teaspoonful of caramel.

When white stains on polished wood surfaces cannot be removed by a cloth dampened in alcohol, use powdered pumice mixed with linseed oil to make a thin paste. Rub over the spots until they disappear. Wipe off carefully with a soft cloth dampened with furniture polish.

A quick relish may be made for an occasion by chopping cooked beets with celery and cabbage and a tablespoonful or two of freshly grated horseradish root, sugar, salt and a little vinegar or lemon juice to taste.

Reasons for Scarcity of Batak Literature

Marco Polo and the emperor of China landed on the Batak coast, to avoid a storm in the Thirteenth century, and had to erect block houses to avoid being eaten by the natives. For the Bataks were and are cannibals, eating renowned individuals, not for dietetic reasons, but that his strength and wisdom may be incorporated in the banquets. The choice cuts are the fingers, toes and the palms of the hands; and—according to a cannibal chief who confided in an explorer—the popular term among cannibals for human flesh is "long pig," as the general taste is like that of the pig.

This tendency on the part of the Bataks is probably the reason why libraries are not usually furnished with Batak literature, because very few agents could be induced to look for rare works within reach of people with such ideas. Indeed, the Cleveland public library is probably the only library in the world to possess a pustaka.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Inn's Many Famous Guests

The Lion Inn at Shrewsbury, England, still popular with tourists, has entertained famous persons for more than a century. There George IV danced before the battle of Trafalgar and there Paganini once played. De Quincey spent a night at the Lion and Disraeli was there in his early days. In 1838 Charles Dickens, accompanied by "Phiz," was accommodated at the inn and wrote to his daughter of "the strangest little rooms" and "how the windows bulged out over the street as if they were the stern windows of a ship." The ballroom, designed and decorated by the Adam brothers, is still used for dancing.

Back to the Library

A young patron at the West Indianapolis public library was explaining why he had not been taking out books for some time.

"Well, you see," he said, "my brother used to buy lots of magazines and I'd read them. But he went 'goofy' and got married and don't buy 'em any more."

Traveler's Notes

Circular notes are notes or letters of credit furnished by bankers to travelers. With the notes the traveler is given a "letter of indication" bearing the names of foreign bankers who will cash the notes upon presentation.

Frankincense

Trade in frankincense, in the ancient world, was shrouded in secrecy because of the high value placed upon this incense in its religious and healing uses.

Delay in Banking Check Costly to Cartoonist

In these days when every one is talking about the dearth of prosperity in this country, there is food for thought in the story of the cartoonist who received a three-figure check, but was so busy reading a book at the time that he forgot all about it and left it between the pages.

Some time later the artist married a widow with a son, and the boy, browsing through the books one day, found the check. Not only did he find it, but he deposited it. But in the meantime the firm that had made out the check had transferred its funds elsewhere and the check came back "No funds."

Of course the firm made the check good but informed the artist that inasmuch as he had so much money he would, in future, have the price of his work reduced 50 per cent.—Los Angeles Times.

THE LAXATIVE WITH HIGHEST ENDORSEMENT

When you get up headachy, sluggish, weak, half-sick, here's how to feel yourself again in a jiffy.

Take a little Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water—or lemonade. Taken in lemonade, Phillips' Milk of Magnesia acts like citrate of magnesia. As a mild, safe, pleasant laxative, Phillips' Milk of Magnesia has the highest medical endorsement. As an anti-acid to correct sour stomach, gas, indigestion, biliousness, it has been standard with doctors for 50 years. Quick relief in digestive and eliminative troubles of men, women, children—and babies.

Why Some Shop Clerks Have Bad Dispositions

It happened in the hat shop in the East 50s. A young woman whose dress was distinguished by her flat heels and tailor-made jacket was having a hard time selecting a hat, and was still dissatisfied after the exasperated clerk had brought out the entire stock. An acquaintance of mine, who was also trying on hats, heard her say:

"I want a hat that's mannish."
"Yes, miss; how about this one?" the attendant replied, bringing out the last of the assortment.
"Not mannish enough."
"But, miss," the other sighed wearily, "it's a man's hat."—New York Sun.

Song "Caught On"

The "Rosary," one of the most popular songs, sold 1,990 copies its first year, 1898; quickly jumped to over 32,500 per year, reached its maximum sales of 264,561 in 1912, and sold 48,735 copies in 1928, bringing its total sales to that year to 2,670,750.

Tinley Park Legion Notes

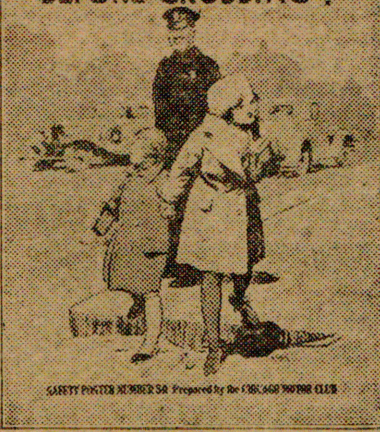

Several members of the Post attended the installation of officers of Orland Park Post, Tuesday night. State Commander Poorman was present and gave an inspiring talk. Commander O'Connell of the 4th District did the installing and to finish the evening, refreshments were served.

The Post has made arrangements to have an up-to-date talking picture presented in Tinley Park some time after Lent. The picture is to be followed by dancing all at a reasonable price. Full details will be announced later.

The masquerade Feb. 7th promises to be a big success judging by the advance sale of tickets and the favorable comment about the novelty orchestra that will furnish the music. Remember, all proceeds are to be used for service work.

Next meeting of the Post is Monday, Feb. 2nd. Let's have a big turnout.

DO YOU LOOK BOTH WAYS BEFORE CROSSING?

"Do You Look Both Ways Before Crossing?" is the timely caption on the February safety poster just issued by the accident prevention department of the Chicago Motor Club to more than 40,000 Illinois and Indiana schoolrooms.

The poster portrays two girls, looking in opposite directions, before venturing across an intersection. They are used by the teachers as subjects for general class discussions and compositions, and are intended to supplement safety instructions received by children from their parents.
